MICHELIN GUIDE RECOMMENDED

Celadon

International

Chef/owner Greg Cole must be raising a glass to his loyal clientele who, for years, has dodged the detritus of nearby construction to dine on his riverfront restaurant's global cuisine. With the Napa Riverfront finally completed, Celadon is again as amicable and tranquil as it is accessible.

A brick fireplace warms the large covered atrium with an aluminum cathedral ceiling and whitewashed brick walls. Cool gray-green coats the interior, where butcher paper and white linens dress the small tables and a quaint bar is ideal for a glass. The menu is as worldly as its wine country patronage, wandering the globe from sweet coconut-fried prawns to a crisp-skinned duck breast perched on roasted spaghetti squash, cranberries, and chestnuts.
